APPRENTICESHIPS AND WORK EXPERIENCE

100 years of furniture design and craftsmanship

Founded in 1920 by Italian-born designer, Lucian Ercolani, ercol has spent over a century perfecting the art of creating furniture that blends functionality, elegance, and enduring quality. Today, the family-owned brand continues to evolve, marrying traditional craftsmanship with contemporary design innovation to create furniture that stands the test of time. ercol's highly skilled workforce has always been our most valuable asset and we remain committed to investing in the craftspeople of the future.

Apprentices are key to ercol and their ability to learn and perfect traditional furniture making techniques that help to ensure that these crafts and skills are retained for future generations.

As an apprentice at ercol, you'll learn how to work safely at all times and eventually make a technical contribution to design, development, quality assurance, manufacture, installation, programming and a wealth of learning opportunities could be offered.

"I enjoy learning on the job and being challenged. You are encouraged to figure things out yourself, but everybody is very supportive and there's always someone around to help if you get stuck - they don't just leave you on your own!"

Malaki - Machinery apprentice

"There's a high level of quality that's expected, and over time you come to respect and appreciate it. It's nice to go home happy, knowing that my work meets that high standard."

Leah - Polishing apprentice
